CHRIS W. COX, WASHINGTON'S TOP PROBLEM SOLVER, LAUNCHES CAPITOL 6 ADVISORS

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Chris W. Cox, one of the country's most successful public affairs strategists and problem solvers, today announced he's expanding his new firm, Capitol 6 Advisors, by bringing in Phil Hoon to serve as Vice President. Launched in August and headquartered in Washington D.C., Capitol 6 Advisors is a full-service public affairs and public policy agency that provides long-range strategic consulting, crisis management and brand positioning services for companies and organizations with complex problems.

"Phil Hoon is one of the most dedicated and respected leaders I have encountered in Washington," Cox said. "He will play an integral role in the growing team at Cap6 and I am thrilled to welcome him aboard."

Hoon most recently served as the Senior Director of Corporate Relations at the Congressional Sportsmen's Foundation (CSF) in Washington, D.C., one of the nation's strongest and most active outdoor advocacy organizations. For nearly a decade, Phil managed the Foundation's relationship with corporate partners, helping it double in size during his tenure.

Richard Childress, NASCAR legend and team owner of Richard Childress Racing, said "In the racing business, it's all about teamwork. That's why I have no doubt Chris Cox will build Capitol 6 Advisors into a powerhouse, because Chris is the ultimate team builder. Phil Hoon will make a great addition in creating yet another undefeated team."

"Phil Hoon has operated at the highest levels, dealing with elected national leaders and corporate executives," Childress continued. "He operates with the highest integrity, and his skill and loyalty have made him effective at everything he does."

"After nearly a decade of helping grow and build an effective operation in Washington and across the country, I am thrilled to join Capitol 6 Advisors to help solve challenging issues for a diverse group of clients," Hoon said.

About Phil Hoon

Phil, 35, is the founding Vice President of Capitol 6 Advisors.

He most recently served as the Senior Director of Corporate Relations at the Congressional Sportsmen's Foundation (CSF) in Washington, D.C., one of the nation's strongest and most active bipartisan outdoor advocacy organizations. For nearly a decade, Phil managed the Foundation's sponsorships, which included corporate, foundation and individual partners. His affiliations with both industry and non-industry representatives helped CSF more than double in size during his tenure. His relationships with both executives and elected officials at the state and national levels made him a respected advocate on a broad range of policies.

Before joining CSF, Phil worked in the political campaign office of then-U.S. Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid. In what was considered to be one of the most tightly contested Senate campaigns in the country, Phil worked closely with the finance, political and external governmental offices in Senator Reid's successful re-election effort.

In addition to a career in politics, Phil has been intimately involved with agricultural and farm management operations, as well as the food and beverage industry. Phil is a graduate of Lynchburg College with a B.A. in American History and Communications. A twelfth-generation native of Chestertown, MD, he lives with his family in Annapolis.
